Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Short Stories by Mary Kennedy Eastham There are no perfect people here. The characters in Squinting over Water are you and me trying to make sense of things - good and bad - coming up with a Plan B when life gets messy. One early reader said she would walk across continents to get to this book. These whimsical stories transformed her, made her believe once again in the true beauty and playfulness of life. She doesn't sugarcoat things. This is one talented writer. -- Kurt Vonnegut, Author Cat s Cradle, Slaughterhouse-Five and Breakfast of Champions You can't stop thinking about Eastham's characters like 16 year old Rebecca Louise in After The Dance. Raised by her single mother, she longs to get to know John Monroe, her father, the man who wasn't ready for parenthood when she was born but who now wants to meet her. And then there's poor Harry in Cat s Eyes, sipping cheap champagne, watching his mother patch together the few strands of hair on Husband Number Five...
