Young. 1919 The first reunion for 19 went off according to schedule with almost sixty men back, a record for classes out such a short time. In this number were included quite a few who had been studying in Amherst during the year. Headquarters were established in a tent on Campus back of the Octagon and from there the class entered into the various festivities. Saturday night Bob Davis provided costumes in the way of yellow sashes and red bandanas and the class joined in the alumni Peerade, making a notable tassel for the tail of the procession as it wound its way around town. The costumes were inexpensive but effective and came in for considerable favorable comment. Monday was the big day for most of the men who were back. In the morning there was a class meeting at the tent, presided over by Hal Seward, who was unanimously reelected president for a term of office extending until the next regular reunion. He was also unanimously elected as a representative to the Alumni Council, and Belknap was returned as secretary and treasurer by the same vote. Monday afternoon the class paraded to Pratt Field in military formation and from the third base line did some praying and cheering for Bart Cummings, who pitched a fine game against Aggie. In the evening the class met at the Nonotuck and enjoyed a good dinner which had...
