Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2012. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Large Print. 228 x 154 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .It is November, 1929. The stock market has crashed. The giddy period known as the Roaring Twenties are about to end. But Cyrus Skeen, private detective, is not too concerned. He never bought on margin or gambled on sure things to make a quick buck; his wealth is secure. He is worried that the government may begin to make things worse by intervening with the panaceas of welfare and inflation. Many businessmen and investors made that mistake and have been bankrupted. Ruined, some have committed suicide. Will Rogers commented that speculators were selling window space to men who wished to jump to their deaths. But not all have leaped from their office windows to end it all. Lucian Maxey, president of Maxey Motors in San Francisco, seems to have committed suicide by putting a gun to his head. The medical examiner and police have written off the death as a suicide. Eugene Maxey, his son, a professor at Stanford University, however, hires Skeen to prove that his father was murdered. A bad check causes Skeen to discover that the man who hired him is not the real Eugene Maxey, but an imposter. Skeen is then drawn into a bizarre conspiracy that leads to a twisting trail of lies, of half-truths, to England, and an odd organization near Cambridge University with ties to the burgeoning Nazi Party in Germany. Skeen then meets the genuine Eugene Maxey, who is as perplexed by the imposture as is the detective. Skeen consults with his friend on the police force, Lt. Patrick Donovan, and with Lt. Raggio, the homicide detective who oversaw Lucien Maxey s suicide. Skeen searches...
