TAYLOR OF QLENWOOD SPRINGS, COLORADO. THE TORRENS SYSTEM OF REGISTERING TITLE TO LAND. HISTORICAL. Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Colorado Bar Association: The evolution of the manner in which the various tribes and nations of the earth have held the lands they occupied forms many interesting chapters in the history of the human race. From the Bible we learn that in the beginning man depended for his sustenance upon his prowess in the chase, supplemented by a desultory and intermittent cultivation of the soil. He was nomadic in his habits and cared little for the use of land for other than his temporary convenience. There is little doubt but that for centuries there was no such thing as individual ownership of any particular plot or portion of ground. During all of that period man was contented with bare...
